THE PULSE - STUDENT RECOGNITION SURVEY

“We’re very pleased that The Pulse was so easy to administer, and helpful in giving us tangible information to look at. Whether results are good, bad, or indifferent, we want to know so we can improve our school.”

– Dan Hornick, Assistant Principal
 North Stafford High School
 Stafford, VA

A good way to start benchmarking recognition in your school is by using The Pulse-Student Recognition Survey. Developed and scientifically validated with Search Institute, the Pulse will help you understand and measure the current state of recognition in your school. It’s brief, easy to administer, and provides you with the real perceptions that students, educators, and adult supporters have about recognition in your school, including subgroup data to ensure all students’ experiences are being considered. The customized report will aid you in creating an action plan for your school. Taking the survey yearly — or once at the beginning of the year and once at the end of the year — can help you track your progress in recognition in your school. The Pulse is provided to Jostens customers at no additional cost.

“We use a lot of data in education to take a look at student progress through different types of assessments. How do students feel about recognition in their school at that moment in time? How well as a school and as a district are you currently recognizing, rewarding, and reinforcing those behaviors and attitudes you want to see? Do the students truly feel as an individual that they’re valued in their school, that they’re connected to the school, that there’s someone who genuinely cares for them that they can go to?”

Utilizing a tool like the Pulse gives you an opportunity to really see where you are at this moment in time and gives you real time results to be able to set goals as a district or individual school to work towards those next steps.”
